FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

We present herewith design and plans of a picturesque frame cottage of one and a half stories, with a large front porch. The exterior is clapboarded, the roof shingled.

The first story consists of living room and dining room, which may be thrown together, kitchen, pantry and one bedroom. The hall is arranged to give access to the front door from kitchen and bedroom without passing through any other room.

Upstairs there are three bedrooms, with plenty of closets, a large bathroom and a storeroom. The cement floored basement contains laundry, with stationary trays, vegetable and coal bins. The estimated cost is $1,200.

Opie Read and His Experience in Texas

OPIE READ, who recently made a lecture tour through Texas, tells this story of an experience he had down there:

"You know," says Mr. Read, "trains are never expected to be on time in Texas. When a train is scheduled to arrive at 8 o'clock you are generally safe in calculating that it will not get there till 11 or 12. Well, I had an engagement in a certain town one night and was at another station about twenty miles away. There was a train which would land me at the objective point at 7 o'clock in the evening. If it happened to be on time, but I thought it would be well to make inquiries. In reply to my question the station agent said:

"I reckon there ain't no use expectin' the train to get here much before 10 o'clock. It's been on time once this year, but it ain't no ways safe dependin' on it."

"Not being in a position to take any chances I hired a man with a buggy to take me across country. After the lecture I found a number of traveling men at the hotel, and they were all anxious to get away. There was a train scheduled for 7:15 in the morning, but the landlord said he reckoned it wouldn't be along much before noon, as it had never arrived on schedule time or if it had nobody remembered it."

"Still, we all got up bright and early the next morning, none of us being disposed to miss the train if it happened to be on time, and we were thrown into a state of great excitement when at 7:10 there was a long toot, heralding the train's approach. Everybody hurried down to the station and there, right on the dot of 7:15, the train pulled in. We were so happy at the prospect of getting away and so filled with enthusiasm over the engineer's achievement in bringing the train through on time that we decided to make up a purse for him. When everybody had chipped in a spokesman was appointed, and he went to the cab to present the money. After he had made a felicitous little speech the cash was offered, but the engineer pushed it away, saying:

"Gentlemen, I fully appreciate your good will and the generous spirit which has prompted you to make up this purse, but I cannot accept the money. My conscience will not permit me to do it. This is yesterday's train."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Millionaire's Comment.

THEY say that money cannot buy the sweetest things in life—Health, heaven, friends, respect, content.
Or e'en a loving wife.
They say that money cannot buy these things for me, alas! But I—
Well, I don't know!

What bought my private car? Just wealth.
What bought my lovely yacht,
Which sails me to the lands where health is found in every spot?
What pays my specialist, dear Jim,
To keep me in such perfect trim?
Well, I don't know!

What bought the most delightful wife
A man could hope to win?
What buys her every wish in life—
The clothes she dazzles in?
And if her heart beats not for me
And I am not adored, you see—
Well, I don't know!

And heaven? Oh, of course I don't expect to get in free.
But if the Lord meant what he said Concerning charity,
The title I'll give before I die
Will slip me through the needle's eye,
Or—I don't know!

For happiness? Well, money bought this ninety cent cigar;
It bought this chair in which I loil;
It bought this private car;
It bought this cognac—and, I guess,
If all this is not happiness,
Well, I don't know!
